The Great Explosive.

Nitro-glycerine looks like oil. Workmen seeing it leaking from a box or can have sometimes mistaken it for sweet oil, and have tried to nail the box tighter with a hammer. This causes a terrific explosion. The way in which the blasting powders are made is by soaking such substances as sand or sawdust and nitro-glycerine with it. The most common of these powders is dynamite; it looks much like moist brown sugar. Some others are called dualin, rendrock, and mica powder. The nitro-glycerine soaked in the sand or sawdust can be carried about without spilling, and can be more safely handled. In the same manner if nitro-glycerine should be spilled upon wood or cloth and should soak into the substance there might be an explosion if the thing were afterwards struck or tossed about. Whenever one visits a quarry, or new railroad, or any factory or establishment where nitro-glycerine or blasting powder might be made or kept, it is well to be careful about meddling with any yellowish oil, or any oily looking powder.

Nothing Like 'Possum.

Uncle Ike was one day riding a mule, and had a little negro boy behind him. "Tell you what, Ung Ike, 'Possum might good thing," said the boy. "Yes, 'tis," said Uncle Ike, as the mule struck a brisk trot. "Specially when you got lots of gravy wid him." Uncle Ike was silent, but seemed restless. "An, when you got some roasted 'taters to top in the gravy," said the boy. Uncle Ike used his switch with nervous energy, and the mule increased its speed to a gallop. "Yes, Ung Ike, when de 'possum right brown, an' de gravy drennin' out an'— "You shet your mouf, you little fool! You'll make dis mule run off an' kill us boaf." Little Rock Gazette.

The Helena Herald says: "California has now in Montana Territory a numerous representation of commercial men taking orders for particular lines of goods which the markets of that State can better and more satisfactorily supply than those of the east. This circumstance is accounted for by reason of the arrangement recently entered into by the Central and Union Pacific authorities by which all shipments from terminal points in California for Montana are admitted over the Utah and Northern Railroad at the same rates as goods of like class from Omaha and other points East.

THE NATIONAL BANKS.

The new party is said by its prophet, Mr. Beck, to be certain to triumph and in time to secure control of the national government. In such case one of its first acts will be to abolish national banks and issue greenbacks in place of their notes. It is well, therefore, for us to consider the wisdom of this act and see if it is a step in the right direction. Fortunately we have the words of a man in whose judgment and character, when he was alive, the people had as much confidence as they have in Mr. Beck. In September, 1878, James A. Garfield made a speech in Boston on this very question. He said: Now, this is a debatable proposition, and you are reasonable men. Let us debate it. If it were just as well to do that I would be in favor of it. If it were better to do that, I would still more strongly favor it. Now, what are the objections, if any? My first objection to that proposition is that it is a violation of the highest promise and faith of this nation, that it will never increase the greenbacks above four hundred millions. If you do that thing you increase them to six hundred and seventy millions. Suppose that trouble to be got over, if you issue three hundred and forty-six millions more of greenbacks on top of the three hundred and forty-six millions now out, you make redemption impossible. Now, why do I say that? The United States treasury can now resume specie payments on the promised day. In 1875 we were told that we could not resume, that the moment we tried to accumulate the coin it would increase the value of the coin and decrease the value of the greenback. But we have accumulated in the treasury of the United States, unpledged for any other purposes, one hundred and thirty-five millions of coin, awaiting resumption or redemption of our greenbacks. Now, there are the national bank notes, three hundred and twenty-four millions of them out. They are compelled to march abreast of us in the work of the resumption of specie payments. The two thousand national banks are all harnessed to the car of resumption, and when we resume they must resume. I am glad they are to help ahead the work. If you abolish them you take away their help, and you put the whole load of six hundred and seventy millions upon the treasury and break it down.

Now, there is another objection that I have to abolishing the national banks and substituting greenbacks. We have the national banks in a shape where they pay a good share of taxes, and I am glad of it. They ought to pay. Since their organization they have paid over two hundred millions taxes to the State and nation. Last year they paid over sixteen millions of dollars in taxes, nine to the States and seven to the nation. Their stock is taxed by the States; their circulation is taxed by the nation; their deposits are taxed by the nation, and the man who holds his money in national bank notes on the day of assessment is taxed on his surplus cash that he holds. How is it with the greenbacks? They are not taxed. There are already three hundred and forty-six million dollars of paper money in this country that escapes taxation altogether. The rich men can gather together their hands on the day of assessment, and escapes taxes altogether by doing it. Now, the substitution you talk of will lose us seventeen millions a year to the State and Federal treasuries, and would take three hundred and twenty-four millions more of paper out of the reach of taxation—a thing fairly to be complained of, and I object to it for that reason.

Another objection is, that the national bank notes are the only portion of our financial machinery that gears the supply of currency onto the laws of demand and supply. It is a self-adjusting method of the country with a sufficient amount of currency. No man is wise enough to tell how much we need, and if men were wise enough, dare you trust it to a partisan House of Representatives?

Suppose another thing, fellow citizens. If you abolish the national bank system you leave it to the mercy of brokers. The banking business of America is necessary to its real prosperity. Do you know that one of the modern devices for avoiding the use of a large amount of money is a bank? What portion of the business of this country is carried on in natural money? In England it is only five per cent. Ninety-five per cent. is by drafts, checks and commercial bills. In this country not less than ninety per cent. is carried on by the different banks. Our present system is secured in its circulation and under the complete control of the law, and it would be a great misfortune to go back to the old system which prevailed before the war. Then if a man wished to take paper money, he used to study the bank note reports. If a merchant in the West wished to come East to trade, he was obliged to sort out his notes before he started. Money from any State would not circulate in more than half the States in the Union. How many men in this audience have taken out their pocket-books in the last six months to see what bank their bills were on? You don't care for the bank under the national system. You know that behind every bill is one hundred cents locked up in the treasury of the United States to secure you against loss. You don't care if the bank is broken, burned up, or if a hundred pounds of nitro-glycerine tear the bank-building to atoms. The value of your bill is the same. We propose to fight this battle out against the cry for more greenback currency, but we propose to fight it out on the square issue of justice and good sense.

EASTERN DISPATCHES.

The Jeannette Inquiry.
WASHINGTON, October 20.
Lieutenant Danenhower resumed his narrative before the Jeannette Board of Inquiry this morning. He stated that about 4 o'clock in the morning he was awakened by a seaman who was calling his relief and saying: "Hurry up, for the ship is going down." Witness heard a crash and the remarks of two men as they watched her go down. That morning, after all hands were called, the spot where the ship sunk was visited by a party. Cabin chairs, a signal chest and piece of wood were found. Witness was asked what was the condition of the ice on the 13th of June, and replied:

"It was very much broken and thrown up in ridges. Large floes in which we had been drifting for 10 months seemed to be broken up by hanging on to Henrietta Island and swinging around to the northwest. The width of the ice was about 10 feet, and the greatest draft of water of any piece I saw measured was 23 feet."

In answer to a question as to the condition of the Jeannette before the heavy pressure of June 13, witness said:

"She was a very strong ship and in the same condition as when she left San Francisco, with the exception that her fore-foot was twisted." "Knowing her condition at that time, would you, if in command of the expedition, have deemed it expedient to continue the Arctic expedition?"

"No, for she had been fitted out originally for three years, and the supply of clothing and provisions would not warrant another year in the ice. The supply of coal, also, would have been insufficient for the coming winter, as the crew had already been exposed for two years to the rigors of the Arctic climate. Furthermore, it is the custom when a ship is fitted out for three years for Arctic work to return at the end of the second summer."

In reply to further questions, witness said: "Had it been another vessel, however perfect, my judgement would have been the same." The entry in the ship's log for the last day previous to her abandonment was identified by witness as the handwriting of Captain De Long. It was made part of the record, and the court adjourned until to-morrow.

Politics in Virginia.
WASHINGTON, October 20.
"We shall carry the State by 30,000 and elect seven of the nine Congressmen." That is the confident assertion of Senator Mahone. The statement is concurred in by Governor Cameron, Collector Brady, Professor Longstreet and a score of Republican and Readjuster leaders, who have been here on a conference with Mahone the last two days. There can be little doubt that Mahone will be successful. Speaking of the effect of the Ohio election upon the Republican cause in other States, Governor Cameron of Virginia has just said that it will have no effect upon Virginia and predicted that the Readjusters would elect six of the nine Congressmen, and the majority for Congressman-at-large—John D. Wise—would be greater than for himself as Governor a year ago. "The Bourbon founders of Virginia," added Governor Cameron, "are dead as they can be, but do not know it."

A Hebrew Agricultural Society.
CINCINNATI, October 20.
An organization known as the Macabees has been started in this city. The purpose is to encourage and assist in the promotion of agriculture among Israelites. The plan is to enroll in various sections all Israelites over 13 years of age, who shall pay an annual fee of one dollar each. Sections in a State constitute a division and representatives of divisions constitute a grand division. The latter will have an executive council which shall control and disburse funds. A provisional council is to act until an executive council is organized, and has already been chosen. It consists of M. Lath, Moses Kroher, M. H. Marks, Henry Joe Abraham, Joseph Irounline, Alexander Strous, Max Isaacs and Henry Lowenstein.

The Knoxville Tragedy.
NEW YORK, October 20.
The Tribune says of the Knoxville tragedy: The bank building seems to have been a perfect arsenal. No community is worse off for the suppression of such elements of barbarism. There is a completeness about this affair at Knoxville that will commend it to the public.

FOREIGN TELEGRAPH.

The Soldiers' Welcome.
LONDON, October 20.
The Horse Guards, who have returned from Egypt, marched through London to-day, taking unexpectedly the route by way of Islington. The weather was fine, and the reception along the whole route, over six miles long, was enthusiastic to a remarkable extent. On arrival at Albany barracks in London they were received by the Prince and Princess of Wales. The Life Guards met with no less hearty greeting at Windsor.

Affairs in Egypt.
CAIRO, October 20.
The council of Ministers has adopted the preliminary scheme of Baker Pasha for reorganizing the Egyptian army. Baker Pasha recommends that the field officers of each regiment, battalion, battery, etc., be half British and half Egyptian, and the other officers, from the rank of captain downward, be selected from Egyptians, Albanians and others already in the service of the Khedive.

Arctic Explorers in Danger.
LONDON, October 20.
From a report made by the commander of the steamer Louise, a trading vessel which endeavored to reach the mouth of the Yenez river in company with the Dutch Arctic expedition ship Varna, it is considered that both the Varna and a vessel of the Danish Arctic expedition are in a dangerous position, as they were both beset by ice in Kara, about 80 miles from the continent.

J. F. Emmitt is making a square and honorable fight for Sheriff. He is making a thorough canvass of the county and is going to win on his merits.

As the head of the county ticket he is making a fight for all his associates, and if everyone does the same it will be pretty near a sweep.

Freight Train Ditched.

Last evening a freight train on the C. P., at Ekhorn Mills, near Cape Horn, broke a wheel, and nine cars were ditched. The express due at Reno at 6:30 this morning was held at Colfax until the track was cleared, and did not get here until half-past 10. The regular emigrant was also several hours behind time.

Birthday Party in Truckee.

A birthday greeting was given Misses Addie Brickell and Susan Schaffer and Henry Schaffer and Will Giffen last evening, at Hurd's Hall, Truckee, by their friends, and all had a good time undoubtedly.

GOING FOR GREENBACKS.

The National Party has a Meeting and Beck Does the Talking.

A good-sized audience assembled at the theater last night to hear the principles of his new faith laid down by ex-Senator H. H. Beck. J. C. Lewis acted as President. Mr. Beck's speech was a good one for the Republicans, for like all men who leave a party, he had nothing but bad words for it and its candidates, while the Democrats were mentioned with praise, from General Jackson down through Governor Bradley's administration to the county ticket. This antagonizes Republicans and will keep them from joining the new move while it may win some Democrats. Many of the speaker's illustrations were extremely witty, some abusive and many were incorrect. He said the old parties were giving people nothing but the glories of the past, and said a hungry man might as well be asked if he did not remember the fine dinner he had last Christmas. He asked, solemnly: "Is there a monopoly?" Someone said, in an undertone: "Yes, the Silver Star mills." He said there is discontent in the land and no candidate dared go before the people and say there was no monopoly. Senator Beck of Kentucky, recently said that nine-tenths of the Senators were the direct representatives of some rich corporation. The speaker said he was not jealous. He did not care how much money anyone got so they did not get what belongs to him. He reviewed the methods of the parties in convention drawing up their platforms and putting the worst possible construction on everything. He said the AIM OF THE NATIONAL PARTY.

Was to take all the money in the Treasury and pay it on the debt so as to stop seven millions of interest. Able men say it is practicable. There are $350,000,000 in the Treasury. [Mr. Beck perhaps forgot that there are over 400,000,000 of greenbacks out, which we have agreed to redeem on demand. If any little panic occurred there would be a run, and if there was nothing to pay with there would be a smash—ED. GAZETTE]. The national banks should be wiped out. They pay no taxes, and draw interest on their stock in trade. They are stronger than the Government itself, and money is tight or plenty at their will. Another object of the national party is to keep gold, silver and greenbacks at par. He said a few years ago all three were different; gold was the standard, greenbacks 88, trade dollars 92, and half dollars 96. He gave the half dozen greenbackers in Congress credit for bringing them all to par. There are men, however, who believe that the resumption act helped to bring the greenback to a level with gold. That the bill which allows half dollars, quarters and ten cent pieces to be exchanged for gold at the Treasury helped subsidize silver, and that the withdrawal of the trade dollar and the issue of standard dollars abolished that difference. Another hobby of the nationalists is public lands. They must not be given away. He believes these reforms could not be made by the old parties, but it could by the new party, for it is created for that one purpose. Mr. Beck made a mad charge at the Republican press of the county and State, reflecting upon them for accepting pay for doing campaign work. Although none of the papers are running for office he undertook to prove them corrupt and venal by quoting things in which he has been misinformed and is entirely mistaken. He referred to the Italians as garlic fiends that are sold like sheep in the shambles, and suggested that a committee of 15 from different parties be set to watch them on election day. He thinks there are about 700 Democrats and about as many Republicans in the county, and the 90 or 100 Italians virtually control the elections. He thinks if anyone was found trying to buy them they should be ducked in the river. He predicted his election and the final triumph of the national party.

Star-Gazing in Daytime.

Yesterday was a clear day, not a cloud being visible; yet, though the sun shown brightly, Venus was visible in the Southern heavens to the naked eye. Quite a number of persons were scanning the firmament to get a sight of the planet, and all whose eyes were not dimmed by age or disease could see it plainly. It will be brightest about November 1st, and on December 6th it will cross the sun's disk, which will be the last transit of Venus that will be seen by anything now living on the earth, as it will not occur again for over two centuries.

Scarcity of Flour in Idaho.

According to our Idaho exchanges flour is scarce in that Territory this year. Bids for supplying the troops at Boise barracks with flour were invited, and the lowest was at the rate of $6 per 100 pounds. At Wood River flour is in demand, and the supply from Boise is short. Nevada millers and farmers might be able to dispose of what flour they have to spare at remunerative prices by sending it to Wood River.

A New England Dinner.

The ladies of the Baptist Church will give a New England dinner, followed by an entertainment, on Monday evening, Oct. 23. Dinner will be served from 5 to 7 p. m. Price of dinner for adults 50 cents; children, 25. Liberal patronage is solicited.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT EUREKA.

Powning Creates an Excellent Impression—The Speeches.

The Republican meeting at the Eureka Opera House Wednesday night was such as might have been expected, considering the reputation of the gentlemen announced to speak. The hall and gallery were both packed, and the audience was attentive and appreciative.

The great desire of our people, says the Leader, was to hear Powning. Some writer has said that a man is never popular until he becomes the object of newspaper attacks and abuse. Most people would prefer becoming popular by some other means, but under the circumstances Powning should not complain. It has brought him prominently before the public, and in every place he has yet spoken the feeling of revulsion has been so general that nothing that can be said by Democratic orators or newspapers will affect him.

To the mass of our people he is a stranger, and they anticipated that as a speaker he would prove of the "burning deck" order. They were disappointed. Powning is of prepossessing personal appearance. His countenance is open and frank, and there is that something about the man that bespeaks both energy and brains. His speech was a genuine surprise to all but those who have heard him in the past. There was no spread eagle oratory, but a calm, logical discussion of the merits of the two parties. He did not claim that the State of Nevada would go to the bow wows unless he was elected. In all important issues that effected Nevada he acknowledged that the State would receive the same benefit whether he or his opponent were elected, but the choice was between a Republican and a Democrat, and as a faithful representative of his party he asked for their endorsement.

He showed by unanswerable arguments that he belonged to a party of progress. That in order to keep abreast of his party he would necessarily be progressive. Like all men he had a hobby. That hobby is to offset the decline of mining in Nevada by agriculture. He favored the sinking of artesian wells and the improvement of our rivers to accomplish this result.

He scoffed the idea of his being an enemy of the working man. He has labored too hard to ever become that. As a boy he packed drills in a Grass Valley mine. He has been a brakeman on a railroad; has sold peanuts, and he always gave a good pint for a bit. He had risen through all the grades in a printing office from devil to proprietor, and was proud of it. Could a man, who had passed through any and experienced the drawbacks under which a working man labors, ever turn his back upon his old associates? For one he did not believe it. He could not, and the audience believed him.

His arraignment of Democratic rule in Nevada was forcible. The people of the State never were benefited by the Democracy either in State or county affairs.

His speech throughout was listened to with marked attention.

The Belmont Courier says that no Republican stump orator will visit Nye's capital this Fall, although, in all probability, Belmont will poll a larger Republican majority on the 7th of next November than any other precinct in the county. With the single exception of Rollin M. Daggett, no Republican candidate for State office has ever visited and addressed a Belmont audience, at least since 1874.

The Courier adds: Powning, Bishop, Leonard and Hallock are billed to speak in Hamilton and other places where there are but very few voters. Mr. Powning and the Republican State Central Committee of Nevada committed a serious blunder when they concluded to give Belmont and the rest of the towns of Nye county the grand bounce. It is quite evident that the State Central Committee lack executive ability. It behooves Mr. Powning and the State Central Committee not to trifle with the Republicans residing in this portion of the sagebrush commonwealth. These grasshopper practices won't do, and "don't you forget it," gentlemen.

Notice to Voters—Final Warning.

Persons intending to vote must see that they are registered before 6 o'clock to-night. A great many are under the impression that the 21st is the last day, but reference to the statute will show that no legal registration can be done after the 20th. You will have an hour or two to get your name on Justice Young's books. Make the most of your time or get shut out.

Young Men's Republican Club.

There will be a business meeting of the Young Men's Republican Club at Reform Club Hall at 8 o'clock on Monday evening, Oct. 23. Business of the greatest importance and much interest will come before the Club, and all members are urged to be present.

Both gentlemen are pleasant speakers, and what they will say will be well worth listening to. Mr. Varian is a candidate for the Assembly, and it is well for the voters to know his views on the questions now agitating the public mind. The coming session will be a very important one. He is a forcible speaker, and will tell some wholesome truths. Mr. Alexander is the Republican nominee for District Attorney, and his speech to-morrow evening will convince voters that they should cast their ballots for him. Go by all means and listen to what the gentlemen have to say.
